In observance of the National Day of Mourning declared by the President and Governor Brad Henry, all three campuses of the University of Oklahoma will be closed on Tuesday, January 2, 2007, except for students, faculty, and support personnel involved with intersession classes, which will be held, and medical students required to service rotations. OU medical clinics will be open for patients to have scheduled appointments.